

Town Fires Point To Incendiarism

INVESTIGATORS ARE AT WORK

In Wainwright, harboring a fire-bug? Have we a pyromaniac resident here? Such are the questions which are on everyone's tongue these days, and indeed the happenings of the past week point very suspiciously to such being the case.

Following the disastrous fire at the Separate School on Sunday, February 23rd, the cause of which is still unexplained, three other fires under very mysterious circumstances have been started—one leaving total destruction, another causing great damage to an unoccupied house, and still another which was fortunately seen and quelled in the incipient stage.

At 8:45 a.m. on Thursday morning last fire was discovered in the old Wakefield house on Sixth avenue east, Mrs. Alderman, J., happily seeing the reflection while giving attention to one of her young children and raising the alarm. The premises have been unoccupied for the past couple of months, and the gas and electric supply had been cut off from the place for weeks, but the fire obtained such a good hold that the firemen, who were on the scene very short time, had a strenuous fight to confine the damage to the interior of the place, which was virtually gutted, before the "all out" signal was given.

On the following morning, shortly after 2:30 a.m., an outbreak occurred at the Maple Leaf Oil Co.'s station, east of the depot, fire chief Renwick being the first to notice the flames which by then fully enveloped the whole of the upper portion of the structure. The alarm quickly brought a full complement of firemen to the scene but after a hard two-hour fight with the flames nothing remained but a heap of ruins, though very fortunately (owing possibly to the calmness of the night) the adjoining oil warehouse of the British American Oil Co. and a number of full gasoline and oil storage tanks closely adjacent were spared from destruction, as was also the Alberta Pacific grain elevator to the west.

During the height of the fire a number of exploding drums of gasoline and distillate increased the hazard for the fire fighters, but no injuries resulted.

Almost at the same time, a fire was found to have been started under the elevator (down in the pit under the railway loading platform) a quantity of kindling wood having been taken from a pile on the railroad tracks and set on fire, but this apparently did not blaze up quickly enough to get going, and it was seen and discovered and put out in short order.

All of which happenings tend to enforce a reputation of the query at the head of this column!

During the week-end a couple of investigations from the police department, and the insurance underwriters' heard have been in town making inquiries into all these mysterious fires, and it is hoped that the outcome of their work will result in the capture and ultimate punishment of an offender if such is found, although nothing definite is yet to be said.

Remains of Mrs. Truman Laid to Rest

The funeral took place in Edmonton last week of the late Mrs. Truman who passed away as noted in our last issue. The service was conducted by Rev. G. McKee, at the First Presbyterian church there and interment was in the Edmonton cemetery.

Among the floral offerings of respect were those from—Bessie and Albert, Clifford and Wilk, James and Irma, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Brander, Miss Jennie Wilson, Mr. and Miss Fullerton, Professor and Mrs. Robt. and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. Lowther, First Presbyterian church, Mrs. Edith Blanche Emerson, Mrs. Edith Smith, Miss Jessie Mae Jones, the McNeil family, Mr. Fraser, Margaret and Mrs. S. W. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Sutherland, Miss Edith Perkins, Miss Catherine McKay, Mrs. A. D. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilgrows, Mr. and Mrs. Horrigan, Ponoko, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thurston, Mrs. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. F. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. D. Davidson and family, Mrs. Shott, family, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Erickson, Mrs. C. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. McLeod, Wainwright, L.O.B.A.

hand in regard to this. The fire alarm bell on the Town Hall, which went through the big town fire in 1929, seems to have lost its efficiency, and for that reason the Town Council are studying the proposition of replacing the bell with some more efficient means of giving an alarm of fire to the residents.

The value of the fire-protection water system to our town was proved to the hilt last week, when despite the very low temperatures and the disadvantages under which the men had to work, the boys were right on the job with their big hoses going full blast at high pressure within a very few minutes in each instance, and without a hitch of any kind occurring in any part of the system or the brigade.

Thanks a lot, fire brigade! It eases the minds of the citizens during these suspiciously trying occurrences!

Mr. J. Williamson, of the Montreal-Alta. Oil Co., left on Saturday last on business for his company in Toronto and Montreal. We understand he is making arrangements for an early start at drilling as soon as the weather breaks.

SWEENEY SAYS FIRINGS OUT-NUMBER FIRINGS

Despite the government's announced policy of consolidations in the civil service for the sake of economy appointments to the permanent staff during the calendar year 1935 actually exceeded retirements by 22, it was shown by the report of A. L. Sweeney, civil service commissioner. Mr. Sweeney was brought from Calgary to assume that post October 1st last.

At the same time, appointments to the "temporary" staff increased by 25 on the year. Of the 1,000 appointments to the permanent staff and 494 to the temporary staff during 1935, most were made in the first three quarters of the year, under the U.F.A. government, tabulations showed—Ed. Journal.

Clive of India Comes to Elite

Educational in its historic atmosphere, this picture is one of the most outstanding of the season. It is actually the story of the great ambition of Robert Clive. It narrates in thrilling, spectacular style, the incidents and events in his career that elevated the obscure clerk to the status of one of England's greatest heroes.

Along with the other great features of this show, there is a love story. The love of a woman, living a life that necessitated her sacrificing all the things closest to a woman's heart. A loyal woman who knew great happiness and great sorrow; who was a steadfast inspiration to her husband; who shared his bitter disillusioned moments and shared his triumphs.

The locales are India and England. Clerk Clive falls in love with a medallion portrait of Margaret, sister of his friend Edmund. Disguised with his counting-room lot, Clive, persuading Edmund to accompany him, joins the army. Here comes such well-known historic incidents as the Black Hole of Calcutta, the victory of Plassey and Clive's marriage to Margaret.

Back to England in triumph but after a few pleasant years, he must return to bring order out of the chaos his political successors have wrought.

See this outstanding show this week-end, Friday and Saturday, Mar. 6th and 7th.

POLITICAL LEADERS AGREE PREMIER OVER-WORKED

OTTAWA—Canada's two leading political figures, Premier King and Conservative Leader Bennett, can agree on at least one proposition, that a prime minister has too much work to do.

The house of commons found them in complete harmony on the subject Friday night just as a few hours later they were clashing on the merits of the Canada-United States trade treaty. Mr. King in his estimate asked for $10,000 additional to supply added assistance for his office and Mr. Bennett commended him for the move.

PREMIER HAS NEWS RE DOUGLAS' VISIT

Reply was received on Monday by Premier William Abernethy from Major Clifford H. Douglas, principal reconstruction adviser to the government, to his letter of February 7th, inviting him to come to Alberta toward the end of March to continue his study of Social Credit.

Asked as to the contents of the letter, the Premier declined to divulge them, stating that they must first be placed before the government, and it would be 24 hours at least before anything could be disclosed.

Later news by radio is to the effect that Major Douglas has cancelled the contract he had formerly with the U.F.A. government, and has definitely refused to come to the assistance of the present government in the establishment of Social Credit schemes for the province.

Edward VIII. Speaks to Empire by Radio

In the quiet of a special audience chamber of the British Broadcasting Co.'s office in London, England, on Sunday last, making his 76th radio broadcast (although his first as king and emperor) King Edward VIII. spoke to the whole of his subjects around the globe.

The broadcast was marked by wonderfully clear reception in all corners of the earth, and the full text was as follows:—

It has been the ancient tradition of British monarchy that a new sovereign should send a written message to his people. Science has made it possible for me to make that written message more personal and speak to you all over the radio.

This, however, is no innovation, for my father has for the last few years spoken to his people at Christmas. Little more than two months ago he broadcast his last Christmas message, and to many of you the sound of his voice must still be ringing in your ears.

He was speaking then at the close of a long and wonderful reign which covered a period of 25 years, during which unprecedented changes have taken place and great anxieties have been shared by all.

Throughout his reign he set a high example of constant devotion to duty, and he was ever concerned for the welfare of his subjects and all those under his protection. In times of adversity his calm confidence was an inspiration to all his people, and he shared in their joys as well as in their sorrows.

I know how in the dominions, in India and in the colonies and dependencies the bond of loyalty to the crown—that symbol of the unity of many lands and populations—has been strengthened by the tie of personal devotion to my father.

I feel that his death is not only an overwhelming grief to my mother and to us, his children, but it is at the same time also a personal loss to you all.

Farewell to Member by Curling Club

A very happy event took place at the Wainwright hotel last Thursday evening when the members of the Wainwright curling club paid their respects and bade their adieu to Mr. W. J. O'Callaghan who had been their very efficient and faithful secretary for the first two years of the club's existence after the new rink was erected.

About fifty curlers sat down to a very fine banquet, after which, with the assistance of Mr. Doug Springbett and Mr. Alex. Adams, all enjoyed community singing and jokes as well as other forms of entertainment put on by various members.

During the evening Mr. O'Callaghan was presented with a suitable gift, President Telford making the presentation on behalf of the club. In his reply in thanking the Club Mr. O'Callaghan voiced sincere regrets on being called upon to transfer his residence to Edmonton.

Mr. Gardiner Lewis left last week end to spend a short holiday at his old home at Buffalo, New York.

Mr. Bill Stuart had a very successful sale on Monday when he wielded the hammer at the disposal of the Kirkpatrick effects on the farm north east of Irma. There was a big crowd out and prices ruled good.

Seek to Reimburse '30 Crop Producers

Now that the Dominion Government has decided to apply the principle of a minimum price to a portion of the wheat crop 1930-31, the principle should be extended to all farmers who sold wheat during that year, according to a statement made by Mr. R. S. Law, President of United Grain Growers Limited last week. Mr. Law's statement was as follows:

"According to announcement which has been made at Ottawa, the Dominion Government has decided to apply the principle of a minimum price to a portion of the wheat crop of 1930-31 and give to a portion of the farmers who sold wheat that year the benefit of a minimum price of 60 cents a bushel. United Grain Growers has decided to call to the attention of the Government the desirability of extending equal treatment to all western farmers and of applying the minimum price principle to all the wheat crop of that year. That would mean giving to those farmers who sold their wheat on the open market those months when the price ranged between 50 and 60 cents a bushel the minimum price of 60 cents. Customers of this company who are in that position look to us to make representation on their behalf to the Government and a number of them have already called on us to do so. Undoubtedly the feeling will be very strong that there should be no discrimination, and that the equality of treatment should be provided."

NEW ACT TO LICENSE MECHANICS AND OTHERS

Advice from the capitol on Monday state that prohibition of barbers, steam fitters, gas fitters and other tradesmen from playing their respective trades or professions unless they are in possession of government proficiency certificates and licenses, is included in a bill brought down in the Alberta legislature.

This act, entitled, "The Tradesmen's Qualifications and Licensing Act" is sponsored by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry.

It is designed to prohibit "any person from engaging in or following any such trade, who is not for the time being the holder of a subsisting certificate issued pursuant to this act."

Provision also is made for registration and licensing of all persons engaged in or following any such trade, whether as employer, journeyman or employee.

FIRE COMMITTEE REPORTS

NEW DOG BYLAW WILL BE RE-DRAWN & OLD ONE REPEALED

This is the record of the proceedings of the council of the Town of Wainwright at its adjourned regular meeting in the council chamber on Tuesday, February 25th, pursuant to the motion of adjournment.

The members of council present at this meeting were Mayor J. G. Mid-dlemore and Councillors Lismore, Welch, Robinson and McLeod.

Mr. Alec Adams submitted his resignation as a member of the local board of health and, on motion by Coun. McLeod, his resignation was accepted and Coun. Welch was appointed to the vacancy on the board for the years 1936 and 1937.

Mr. Henry Leroux made application to council for the use of Lots 35, 36, 37 and 38 in Block 12 Plan 6445 V for gardening purposes and on motion by Coun. Welch, their application was accepted at a salary of $125.00 and actual out-of-pocket expenses.

The application of Mr. W. J. McBeth for relief was presented and, on motion by Coun. Welch, the application was approved by council on the established schedule.

On motion by Coun. Robinson, the public works committee were authorized to purchase from Mr. A. Dupre the necessary parts for the completion of the cab on the utility truck at a cost of $8.00.

The Secretary-Treasurer presented the financial statement required by sub-section (r) of Section 89 of the Town Act for the month of January and, on motion by Coun. Welch this statement was adopted and incorporated in the proceedings of this meeting.

A report submitted by Coun. Lismore as chairman of the Fire and Utilities committee, showed that during the month of February to date four fire calls had been answered by the brigade. Two of these calls, viz. at the R.C.M.P. office and at the

Ben. Bernie Shows in 'Stolen Harmony'

Here is a picture of a novel idea and if you like to see dancing, you'll certainly enjoy George Raft's performance in this show.

Raft, a young saxophonist in the prison band, is given a chance to prove himself by Ben Bernie, the "old Maestro," in his famous band. He makes good, and the band starts a cross-country tour. When the partner of Grace Bradley, featured dancer, walks out, Raft gets his chance to portray his skill on the floor and the couple are the real hit of the show.

In Chicago he is approached by one of his old prison mates who wants him to help to rob the bus safe. Raft refuses. Later when the safe is robbed he recovers the money but is caught by the police. Again Bernie sees to it that he is released although his innocence is doubted.

The whole outfit is captured by the gang and taken to a hide-out and made to play. Raft is recognised by the gang and later to all appearances has again become one of them. His playing in this particular part is very clever. First he is seen as the suave and polished dancer, then as a two-faced gangster.

Of course, everything turns out right for him, and his efforts to go straight and expose the gang are not in vain.

This picture is showing at the theater on Monday and Tuesday next, March 9th and 10th.

NEW SHALLOW OIL STRUCTURE DISCOVERED

Discovery of a new oil field in Alberta which will enlarge the present known areas of the Turner Valley field to the west, and which in the opinion of geological experts and sponsors of the new development will bring in a high grade of oil at depths of not more than 1,500 feet, completely changes the picture of the province in Alberta, where deep drilling has been the rule, was made known in Edmonton last Friday, when it was learned that an area of 2,400 acres has been filed on by interests believed to be closely connected with the Royal Dutch Shell.

Wainwright livery stables, had been quenched by the use of chemicals only although the hose line had been laid in each case, and that the damages were slight. Another alarm at the home of W. Little had proved to be a chimney fire, with little damage.

The brigade had been called to the fire at the Separate school buildings on February 23rd, and after quite a strenuous fight total destruction had been confined to the auditorium, although the kitchen, laboratory and classrooms had also been quite badly damaged. The committee also reported that the very able and willing assistance of a number of citizens aided considerably in saving the entire destruction of the whole of this property, through which the fire raged for a considerable time.

The T. Eaton Co. Ltd. wrote asking immediate payment for goods furnished to Mrs. Myrtle L. Bowers and, on motion by Coun. Robinson, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to advise the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. that the matter is being taken up with the provincial relief department.

A communication was received from Mr. W. I. Munro, general superintendent of the C.N.R., notifying council of the willingness of the company to dispose of cinders to the Town of Wainwright at 25 cents per cubic yard, the town to load and haul the cinders, and on motion by Coun. Robinson the communication was ordered filed.

Written advice from the Town Solicitor in connection with the case of William Kostachuk was submitted to council and, on motion by Coun. Welch the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to ascertain the claim of relief furnished this man in December as mentioned in the communication from the department of municipal affairs.

Legal opinion of the Town Solicitor as to the liability of the Town of Wainwright for the charges of the Central Alberta Sanatorium in connection with Pon Yee was submitted and on motion by Coun. Welch was laid on the table until the next regular meeting.

On motion by Coun. Welch, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to notify the bureau of relief and public welfare that Mayor Middlemore will interview them personally in their office in Edmonton in the very near future in connection with relief being furnished by the department to Mrs. Bowers and the claim of liability of the town therefor.

On motion by Coun. Lismore, the matter of relief to Mr. W. F. Hackett was laid over until information as to income is received.

Councillor Lismore gave notice that at the next regular meeting of Council he will move or cause to be moved a resolution for the introduction of a By-Law, conforming with the wording of Section 153 of the Town and Village Act of the province of Alberta, restraining and regulating the running at large of dogs, and imposing a tax on the owners, possessors and harborers of all dogs, and repealing By-Law No. 192 of the Town of Wainwright and amending By-Law No. 216.

On motion, Council adjourned.

Lon. Papers See Signs Ed. VIII Won't Marry

LONDON—The Sunday Express says the historic and rich Duchy of Cornwall will be turned over by King Edward to the Duke of York to aid the latter financially in his increased duties as heir-apparent. This move was viewed in some quarters as the strongest indication that the back-sitter King never intends to marry, the paper says, for Cornwall, since it was established by Edward III, always has been the property of the heir to the throne. It was suggested that if Edward VIII had any intention of marrying he would probably keep the duchy for a possible son and heir, in accordance with age-old tradition. The income from the Duchy of Cornwall was the sole state revenue for the Prince of Wales. In 1927 it paid him £79,917.

We understand that the fire at the Wakefield house was all due to the owner, Mr. Robt. Wakefield, who now lives north of Edmonton, as no insurance was carried on the premises.

Mrs. A. Horne is here from Edmonton on a visit to her mother for a few days.

SHRUNKEN LIGHT WEIGHT WHEAT INFERIOR

The above illustration reveals clearly the danger of seeding light weight seed much of which will be found in the Rust and Frost areas of Western Canada.

The experiment was made at the North Dakota Agricultural College by seeding the same quantity of seed in each small plot, which seed, however, was of different weights per bushel, varying from 27½ lbs. to the bushel to 60 lbs. to the bushel (the bushels mentioned are the American or Winchester bushel which contain approximately 3 per cent less weight than the British Imperial bushel). With Canadian bushels, therefore, the above figures would represent, for instance, approximately 62 lbs. instead of the 60, 51½ instead of 50, and 41½ instead of the 40.

Although germination tests on shrivelled light weight wheats are surprisingly good there is, as shown in the above illustration, a striking difference in the kind of plants such seed produces. The photograph was taken when the plants were 12 days old.

"Shrivelled light weight seed," the North Dakota Agricultural College states "may germinate high but the sprouts and seedling plants are smaller, 'spindly' and not so sturdy as those from plumper seed."

TODAY & TOMORROW

PAIR world's greatest New York is going to have a World's Fair in 1939. The date will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the nation. On April 30, 1789, the first President of the United States, George Washington, took the oath of office on the balcony of Federal Hall, at the corner of Broad and Wall streets, and for more than a year he lived as President in New York. The national capital was then removed to Philadelphia, where it remained until the new city of Washington was ready for President John Adams.

New York City is almost a perpetual World's Fair in itself. The first World's Fair in America was held in New York, in the Crystal Palace, in 1854. The promoters of the 1893 exposition promise something grander and more interesting than has ever been held.

At any rate, it will give everybody an opportunity and an excuse to visit America's greatest city.

MEMORIES growth Years ago I met an old man who claimed to have been President Washington. That may have been true, for certainly there were many men alive in my boyhood who were born before Washington died. But I have found that many old people "remember" things that never happened.

One old gentleman, Major George Haven Putnam, who died at 83 a few years ago, told me a story that I do believe. As a small boy he was walking with his father on the Bowling Green, at the lower end of Broadway. They met President Washington. They met Washington Irving, the famous author, who was born in 1783. Irving patted the little boy on the head and said to him:

"Now you are only two years on the head from George Washington."

He had been walking with his own father, Irving said, at almost the same spot, when they met President Washington, who patted his little namesake on the head.

When I hear such anecdotes and realize that only the span of two human lives lies between today and the beginning of the nation, I am always freshly amazed that we have grown in so short a time to the wealthiest, most vigorous and almost the largest nation in the world. And I wonder how much further we are going.

FARADAY and tax The other day a scientist in London, seated at the desk used by Michael Faraday, struck a match and lighted a candle. That started an electric impulse which sped across the Atlantic and lighted a lamp to encourage the opening of the new Museum of Science and Industry in New York.

Paradise, the blacksmith's son who invented the electric dynamo, could not have foreseen a miracle like that, perhaps, though he was a good prophet. When Mr. Gladstone, Queen Victoria's Prime Minister, asked him what good his dynamo was, Faraday replied:

"Some day you can tax it."

Our whole great structure of public utilities is founded mainly on Faraday's invention. And governments have certainly discovered that it is taxable!

ICE harvest The biggest ice crop in many years is being harvested on the upper Hudson River and the lakes of northern New York, and New England. Two-foot ice is reported from Lake Champlain, and still freezing.

Electric refrigeration in homes, and artificial ice plants everywhere, have pretty nearly ruined what used to be a prosperous and profitable industry. The annual ice crop used to bring more cash into the towns along the northern rivers than anything else. While there is still a market for good natural ice, it is small and localized.

Yet I haven't heard of the "ice farmers" asking the Government for relief!

FISHING winter Winter fishing through the ice is just as popular and profitable as ever. I had a letter from a niece in Vermont the other day, who wrote that her husband and five other men had built their fishing shanty about three miles out on Lake Champlain and were making big catches of pike and pickerel.

I haven't been around the winter fishing grounds for years, but I have vivid memories of one Spring when they broke up taking expeditions on Lake Erie and several phenomena were carried down the Niagara River on floes, with onlookers on shore unable to do anything to save them.

I suppose most young folks of today would balk at taking such risks to earn a living. But forty or fifty years ago nobody expected somebody else to feed him if he didn't work at whatever there was to do.

ENCOURAGING results have again been obtained from the forage crop breeding work at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Brandon, Manitoba. There were 229 varieties and strains on test in the forage crop nursery.

"MOUNTED" ON MOTORS

"They are still 'mounted' police but comparatively few of them now ride the ponies usually associated in the public mind with Canada's scarlet-coated forces. They are lost in romance is gained in utility. Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in Washington recently for a game preservation conference, explained how things are. The men of the famed force have to go in for faster means of transportation than horses now. There are few places where motor-cycles, automobiles, boats or air planes cannot penetrate, and so the number of constables on horses has been reduced to about 300, mostly on the farthest frontiers.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

THOSE LITTLE BOYS

Last week an anxious father brought his little lad of seven to my office with a really well-fitting, surgical-looking bandage about his head, only one eye peeking through. There had been a fight at the country school house and this seven-year-old got a shade the worst of it. The teacher, good soul, had applied mercurchrome from her kit, put on the dressing and hurriedly took the boy home in her car.

Removing the dressing, I found an abraded wound not skin-deep, extending from the inner margin of the left orbit, almost to the point of the nose; it had oozed blood rather freely, and blood clots were in the wound. The slight wound had been treated thoroughly with mercurchrome.

You know what I did? Well, I removed the bandage which was so snug and efficient as to be almost disabling in itself. I prescribed an ounce of the teacher's antiseptic. I told the father to leave off all dressings and paint lightly with mercurchrome about four times a day. Within three days the wound had healed. Now for the conclusions: All the small, mean wounds, involving no important structures, heal better and faster IF LEFT IN THE OPEN AIR. Had I continued to keep over-heating dressings on that boy's face, he would have been coming back today for attention. Keep your small wound clean with any positive antiseptic, and use as few dressings as possible. They shut out air.

A Poke at Poker Faces

Back in the phibious days of the Golden Days, all athletes were heroes and the sports pages were soaked with the gay colors of careers and personalities. They were the days of Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth, of Big Bill Tilden and Babe Bonds and Ben Jones and Lengion and Well, then, there was a cute little girl with pigtail who could outbeat all the other girls at tennis, but Helen didn't have any cards. One of the brighter young men watched Miss Willis playing a tournament apparently without changing her expression, and named her Little Miss Poker Face, and Little Miss Poker Face she has remained.

Yet the actual truth is that while Miss Willis, now Mrs. Moody, appeared to have during play a face that completely masked her emotions, actually she hasn't. I proved this to myself many years after her nickname had become. Thrust fast by taking a year of powerful field glasses and bringing her face up so close that I could see beneath her inevitable eyeshade, and in a rather tight match I read practically every emotion on her lovely face. When, again, she seemed a little bored, I saw her eyes close and her mouth a little tighter. I saw her eyes close and her mouth a little tighter. I saw her eyes close and her mouth a little tighter.

The damage, however, had been done. The dead pan had been introduced in sport as something admirable. Professional and amateur athletes enlisted under the sign of the cold fish. You see them still going through terrific competitions coldly, expressionless. They give me cold. If they only knew it, they give the average spectator a similar ache. Because the whole psychological basis of spectator attendance at sports events is vicarious participation.

Some of the greatest thrills I have ever had from watching sport have come from catching some dead expression on the face of an athlete that told me a story. There was the night that Tunney and Dempsey fought for the second time. Dempsey knocked Tunney down in the seventh round and then tried to knock him out. Tunney desperately hurt, ran—that is, kept moving backwards—to save himself. And Dempsey chased him. Tunney's legs, though still numb by the paralysis of the chin punch, were young and strong. Dempsey's were dead.

And then there came into the face of Dempsey such a strange and bitter look—self-realization. He was in that moment a has-been. The championship had been in his leather mittens, and he had failed to take it. What a helpless, despairing, dramatic look. Sharply and painfully, for a second, I felt everything that Dempsey felt. That look had taken me into the ring with him. Joe Louis, the new colored knockout sensation, features a poker face, cold and expressionless even when his glove is raised in token of victory. The crowd will never warm to him as they do to fighters who have the knack of letting the spectators fight along with them.

The collapse of the famous New York Giants in 1934 during the race for the National League championship was a peculiarly dramatic story and one of vengeance. At the beginning of the season, Bill Terry, the player-manager of the Giants, had ridiculed the Brooklyn Dodgers. To reporters he had said, "Brooklyn? Are they still in the League?"

To have the despised Brooklyn team turn out to be the strongest that overthrew the Giants in the last two games and knocked them out of the World Series money sounds like the invention of a Hollywood script writer, but that is exactly what happened. Thousands of fans jammed the stands as the Brooklyn batters knocked the Giant pitchers from the field, and their war cry was—"Is Brooklyn still in the League?" When Bill Terry, who had spoken that booming sentence came to bat, he was blasted and bled, not only by the Brooklyn bats but also by the Giant fans.

I don't think Terry's expression varied a shade the entire two days. When he came to bat his face was a mask, and a mask it remained. There was little sympathy felt for Terry. And yet one little gesture on his part would have melted the vast gallery of batmen and sent them home enriched by a real sensation of having participated in the series. Had he just held his arm in front of a face for one moment in mock shame and then grimaced a little, every soul in the park would have felt—"Never mind, old boy! We know how you feel. We've had many a wisecrack of our own come back and pin us"

Sports spectators are pathetically eager to share the thoughts and emotional experiences of their heroes. One little revealing look or gesture will please them more than perfect performance or winning scores. To see Babe Ruth lift a home run in a World Series was always a great thrill, yet it was only a fine mechanical performance. But not one of the 40,000 present will forget the World Series game between the Yankees and the Cubs, when with two strikes and two balls on him Babe pointed with his bat to the center-field fence and then hit the next ball out of the park on exactly that line. The utterly mad, courageous, impudent, self-confident swashbuckler. The nerve of him! And to get away with it! Friend and foe alike came away that night loving him for it.

And when Fred Perry, the great English tennis player, throws his racket high into the air after winning a difficult championship or bows his head in disgust at gunning up a shot, I am delighted at being able to share his experiences. This sort of thing is often mis-called color. It is something quite apart. It is more the human, natural touch, the courage and the ease to give away to emotions as we all do. Your so-called good loser with his phony smile and warm, what-a-good-sport I am handshake, always makes me a little ill. My kind of guy is the loser whose attitude is—"Well, you lose, congratulations. You beat me all right, but

BRUCE BARTON Says:

There's a Pollyanna Rebuttal I happened to be in the office of a manufacturer when a heated customer arrived. "Joe," he shouted, "when am I going to get that shipment? I'm tired of being given the run-around. Every day you told me up is costing me a hundred dollars." On he went, breaking into profanity, pounding the desk, threatening to take his business elsewhere. Joe, the manufacturer, listened coolly, motioned to do his best, and had hardly got the wrathful gentleman out of the office when another customer came in. He also wanted a shipment, and wanted it very badly. He settled himself in a chair, smiled and said: "Joe, I know you're in a terrible jam. I don't want to ask anything unreasonable, but if you could possibly let me have even a part of my order this week it would be a tremendous help."

After a little while the second customer also left. Joe turned to me and said: "I can't possibly take care of both these fellows. I'll give you three guesses as to which one of them is going to get the break."

In another office I found a lawyer in a complacent mood. He told me he had just come from a visit to an important client. "He's very difficult to deal with," the lawyer explained, "and lately he's been most unbecomingly. But this afternoon before I went to see him I sat alone in my office for half an hour and tried to think of everything that could possibly be said in his favor. I reminded myself that he pays his bills promptly; that he has done some very generous acts in his life; that he is really a sick man for whom allowances must be made. I got myself into a frame of mind where I thought he was a pretty swell fellow. And, believe it or not, I've just come back from the best interview with him I ever had in my life."

If this be called Pollyanna stuff, all I can say is that it does get the orders.

If you think I like it, you're crazy. I feel awful."

They're Interesting Writers My friend Lockwood Barr has a hobby that is both entertaining and inexpensive. He scans the Personal Columns of newspapers as an antidote to an act collector's studies. TRAVELING
With the outlook for a general European war fading into the background, and a widespread increase in the incomes of most average Americans, the Trans-Atlantic steamship lines are looking forward to the biggest tourist season in history, beginning this coming season. The big addition to the Atlantic line is the "Queen Mary." Whether the "Queen Mary" and the big French liner "Normandie" can ever be profitable is somewhat doubtful. Shipping men point to the great success of two motorized American liners "Manhattan" and "Washington" as proof that ocean giants do not pay as well as craft of somewhat smaller tonnage.

The operators of all the Trans-Atlantic lines got together the other day in Paris and agreed to abolish the distinction between first class and second class. All of the big ships are now what are termed "cabin" liners. The only difference in rates is in proportion to the location and desirability of the cabin accommodations. That is going to make it easier for a lot of travelers who have trouble in swallowing their pride and who would never travel "second-class." Now they can go to Europe on the same footing with the free-spenders in the first-class cabin.

This looks like a good year to go abroad.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS
"A free press stands as one of the great intermediaries between the Government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves." That is the language used by Justice Sutherland of the Supreme Court of the United States in deciding the unconstitutionality of the law that the tax on newspaper advertising, which the State of Louisiana had undertaken to impose, was unconstitutional. This decision is the latest of a long series of rulings by the High Court upholding the specific provisions of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech and of the press.

From the time when the first printing press was set up there has been an almost constant fight for the right to print and publish without control by authority. Sometimes it has been the authority of the church which has attempted to curb the press; sometimes the authority of the government. In the long run, so far as the English speaking world is concerned, the press has eventually won every battle. That is not true in most of the rest of the world. Outside of the United States, the British Commonwealth of Nations and the Republic of France, there is no important country in the world in which newspapers are free to report the acts of public officials and comment upon public questions.

The first step that a dictator takes to secure the power which he has seized is to suppress and curb the newspapers. So long as the newspapers of a nation begin to free from political control in any form, Democracy is in little danger. Whenever a government of a nation attempts to suppress or influence the opinions of a newspaper, that is a danger signal not likely to be disregarded.

Olive oil is a cold place. Keep it always in airtight can.

TALKING ABOUT THE WEATHER
There may have been longer periods of severe cold weather than we have had this winter, but few people can remember them, and the Weather Bureau confirms the belief, taken by and large, this has been the worst season in many years. There have been lower temperatures, but seldom such prolonged cold spells and such a succession of cold waves.

The amateur weather prophets and the long-range forecasters are putting forward the usual variety of explanations which don't explain, and predictions which are more likely to be wrong than right. A favorite explanation for unusual weather conditions is that sun spots have something to do with them. But the theory that the 11-year cycle of sun spots affects terrestrial weather, whether favorably or unfavorably, has not been borne out by the records of the Weather Bureau, which have been kept continuously in all parts of America since 1871.

Some weather prophets are beginning to predict that 1936 will be like 1945 which used to be referred to as the year without a summer in the northern states. Another school of thought holds that a severe winter has always followed by a hot summer. The fact is that nobody knows more about the weather and the causes of its violent changes to forecast it for more than a week or so ahead. Nevertheless, the weather is, always has been and always will be the most interesting topic of conversation.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH RADIO?
What is wrong with the Canadian Radio Commission and its program?

There is abundant evidence that the governing body of radio broadcasting in this country is not filling the bill to the taste of Western Canadian radio fans. Discontent is heard on all hands when the subject of radio discussion among users of radio in the three prairie provinces and press commentators, even those inclined to be more merciful to the authorities, are constantly poking the commission.

Dissatisfaction is not so rare in Western Canada, because, it is said, the residents of that half of the Dominion, who do not like C.R.C. programmes coming over the air at the moment, can, with an easy twist of the wrist, turn to something more to their taste and bring in a wide selection from the best eastern stations on the other side of the international boundary without interference from local stations.

In western Canada radio fans are largely excluded from this consolation, due to the fact that the distribution of wave lengths in the west is such as to inevitably shut out reception from the more popular accessible stations on the American side of the line and particularly at those points where music is in most constant use, except for those few who are able to afford the more up-to-date models.

Another off-hand complaint is that in the choice of its chain programs the commission devotes too much time to highly classical music and too little to the type of entertainment which the greater majority of Western Canadians would sooner hear. In other words, it is stated that the programs are not well balanced. This great majority would prefer to hear a little more of the "jolly rollicking barn dance" type of music and more entertainment of humorous variety than the Commission appears able or willing to provide, but at the same time they want this entertainment furnished by what may be termed "top notchers" and not by mediocre amateurs.

Tolland P.O., Alta.

The Editor:
Dear Sir—At the annual meeting of the members of Grizzly Bear M.D. held in the Ganton school on Saturday Feb. 15th, a great deal of notice was taken of the Hudson's Bay settlers who are drawing relief. The writer wishes to say also that while settlers east of Tolland are on relief, the R.R. of 4 is not, and has not yet been on relief.

Why be down on the poor settler who is unfortunate enough to have to depend on relief for his bread and butter? We were brought here under the impression that a good living could be produced. When we arrived we found the move was to populate the country and keep it under one flag. We found the good living and great help promised was to the tune of $4000 to $5000 debt and interest at 6 per cent still piling up.

If the old timers would stop to think they would find that people with a debt to a company are not in the same position as old timers, who are able to borrow from the bank to meet their needs. The settler has only one option to keep the poor little underfed children from absolute starvation. I wonder if the man who brought up the subject of relief, has seen, as I have, poor little Hudson Bay settlers at Xmas trees with no shoes and no stockings on; little things sick and crying for an orange or something different to dry bread?

Certainly, some of the settlers won't work, and need calling down, but that is the business of the settler, instead of begrudging them a bite of bread, give them one. Live and let live!

H.B.C. Wife,
Hudson's Bay District.

Vancouver is holding this year the Golden Jubilee celebration of its founding in 1860. One of the features planned includes sports events of all kinds, music, pageants, a special performance of "Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream" in Stanley Park, a performance of "The Wizard of Oz" in the city hall, and a special decorations and illuminations will reach their peak in the first ten days of July.

It is a pity every British Columbia business man can not find time to visit the Fair 1936, particularly Japan, said C. A. Curren, assistant general manager, British Columbia, for the Canadian Pacific Railway, just back from a trip to the Orient. Mr. Curren thought it a pity would be an education, enlightening and of inestimable value to a practical man.

Two prominent British residents in Kobe are fishing a losing battle against a race of natives which they fear is about to fall on their necks, according to passengers arriving in Vancouver recently on the Empress of Japan. They can't get it called because it is believed that it is a pestilence will strike the district.

"The Canadian Pacific's biggest liner, the 22,300-ton Empress of Britain, to be designated 'cabin ship' following the abolition of 'first class' designation by the North Atlantic Conference, will continue in operation as a high class, high speed, de luxe liner," William Blair, steamship passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific, said recently.

PROV. LIBERAL LEADER

SUPREME COURT JUDGE

Confirmation from Ottawa has named Mr. W. R. Howson, leader of the Liberal party in Alberta, as a justice of the Alberta Supreme court in succession to the late Mr. Justice J. R. Boyle who died in the east two weeks ago.

Mr. Howson is a former president of the Alberta Bar Association and is associated with a widely-known Edmonton legal firm, Howson, Duncan, MacLachlan and Cross.

Confirmation of the appointment creates a vacancy in the Alberta legislature for Edmonton.

William Robinson Howson, K.C., leader of the Alberta Liberal party, has had a varied career.

Born at Norwood, Ont., March 6th, 1883, on a farm cleared by his grandfather, he was a school teacher at 18, then bank clerk, bank manager, collector, salesman for farm implements and real estate, university student lawyer, soldier, and politician and finally Liberal leader.

He came to Edmonton in 1910, and later went to Calgary. He later returned to Edmonton and entered the University of Alberta.

In the three years from 1912 to 1915 he took the arts and law courses at the same time and studied enough to take the university gold medal for highest general proficiency of any student during those three years. He was the first Alberta graduate to be elected to the Senate of the University. He obtained his B.A. and LL.B.

After his graduation, Mr. Howson enlisted and went overseas, returning with his unit to Edmonton in 1920. He was elected to the Alberta legislature as a Liberal member for the city of Edmonton in 1930 and was chosen provincial Liberal leader in October, 1932.

SILK STOCKINGS MILADY'S WEAKNESS

LONDON, Eng.—Milady in Britain when she goes out to buy her pure silk hosiery looks with favor on the Canadian article which has made a name for itself in the British market on the grounds of quality and elasticity. Of some 150,000 dozen pairs of silk stockings which it is estimated were imported into Great Britain last year, Canada supplied well on to half that quantity, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Full-fashioned silk hosiery is where the Canadian stocking makes its appeal while the decorated heel, the swag-ger toe, a fancy top, shading color and all the other gadgets and adornments which are dear to milady's heart are added attractions and bring higher prices and larger sales as long as the feature is new.

TENTH INSTALLMENT

They died together. Angela, in the highest spirits. Her wit flashed at the tip of her tongue; her laughter rang like the thin chiming of bells.

"You're very bright tonight," Macduff told her.

"Yes, I've had word from home today."

"Oh, that's it!" His manner was somewhat chastised. "It must have been cheerful."

She laughed behind her champagne glass. "It was something I didn't expect."

They strolled out of the dining-room and took two rickshaws to Jade Street. At last they went into the finest and blackest of all the Chinese steps, and a wrinkled old Chinese came forward to ask in a quavering voice, what they wanted.

She explained that she wanted a jade bracelet, very rare, very choice. The man studied her with attention; then he closed his shutters and bolted his door.

"I show you something very rare, miss," he said, moving majestically through the small square of the shop. He pried at the drawer of a lacquer chest, which sprang open and revealed an inner compartment. Angela fancied she caught a gleam in the whites of his eyes. His finger moved mysteriously at the back of the chest, pressing on secret springs till he reached a long black case. From its velvet folds, which seemed to hold the dust and odors of centuries, he drew out a bracelet and suspended it with a clasp before her eyes.

"Ah!" she exclaimed, in admiration. "That's it!"

Macduff was impressed. He took the bracelet in his hand and passed it through his fingers, bluntly, without the caressing fondness of the Chinese. Five carved Buddhas of dark jade were strung together on an intricate silver chain. Any eloquent bracelet, a bracelet one would remember. She would not have dreamed of a better choice. The merchant named his price. It was absurdly high and twice the value of the trinket. She did not care. "I want it," she said to Macduff, "and I won't haggle at all."

"Are you glad to be homebound now?" Macduff enquired. She did not answer.

"Angela, I asked you a question," "I know, Macduff. Forgive me, I'm wondering whether I'm glad or not."

"What happened, Angela? I know that something's hit you hard."

"How clever of you!"

"I thought you'd be glad to get back to your husband and home."

"I'm not going back to my husband," she spoke as calmly as if she were flicking a speck of dust from her clothes.

Macduff looked at her suddenly and dropped his pipe from his mouth. "You're not going back to your husband?" he repeated stupidly.

"No. He doesn't want me back. He wants a divorce."

"And you're going to give it to him?" His voice rose from its deep rumble to a peak of surprise.

"Why not? You see, he's fallen in love with a girl of seventeen, and youth must be served."

"Well, I'm damned!" Gently he touched the back of her idle hand. "I'm double damned! The wive!"

"Hush, Macduff!" Her fingers covered his lips.

"The bracelet, then? I'm sure it had something to do with your news."

"Yes," said Angela simply. "Lovat wanted the bracelet for the girl he loves."

"Angela, you're a fool!" said Macduff, suddenly.

"Yes, I'm afraid I am. A miserable fool. But let's move on."

It was one of the red-letter days in Miss Mudge's life. When they were back on the Marneia, she looked up Mr. Charlton, feeling that her pleasure was something she must share with him.

"I wonder if I shall be able to settle down when I get home," she was saying. "I've always thought it better to feel planted in one spot."

"I shouldn't suspect that from knowing you, Miss Mudge."

His voice was teasing, but it passed over her like a caressing wind.

"Why not?"

"I can't believe you'd bang the door shut on adventure. If you were that sort, you wouldn't have come on this trip around the world."

"I think you're discovering things about me that I didn't know myself. But, you see, there hasn't been much chance for me to do anything but stay put."

She leaned against his sleeve, her quaint, small face thrust up into his. Dick feared that she wanted to be kissed, that she wanted very badly to be kissed by him, yet did not know it. He held her hand and felt it burning in his cool clasp. Miss Mudge caught fire under his touch until all of a sudden he was holding her, shaking, in his arms. O God! he thought. Though he hated tears, he was moved by the desperate note of hysteria in her voice. She shuddered and clung to him. He was shocked by the fervor of her embrace.

"I'm so ashamed!" she murmured into his ear.

"Ah, don't say that. It's stupid for a woman to be ashamed of her feelings. They're really the most charming thing about her."

"But I wouldn't do this in Ontario," Miss Mudge went on. "I wouldn't be so abandoned."

Dick laughed.

"You're very far from there now, and you must know by this time that there's a broader, freer world than that."

Miss Mudge listened, entranced. Perhaps it was true. His words came sweetly into her consciousness. Suddenly she buried her face in his collar.

"Mr. Charlton!" she murmured.

"My dear!" said Dick, catching her in a firm and sustaining grip and laughing at himself for a fool. He turned her away, dripping with tears. He saw her drenched eyes and the eager, tremulous curve of her lips. Bending over, he kissed her so slowly and thoroughly that she flinched against his chest. With a quick surge of concern he put her back in her chair and bent over her, wondering what he could do to revive her, but he saw that her hysteria had been wiped out in a deadly

After a while she got up and scuttled along deck without a word—a ridiculous figure, with ridiculous skirts, flying towards the companionway. She had called him Mr. Charlton, even when he had kissed her! Dick wiped the sweat from his brow. Never again! He regretted everything that had happened, everything from the very beginning. This had been different from all his other experiences; it left him with a self-dignity. He was awfully lonely, thinking of Miss Mudge's lonely pillow.

The Marneia was steaming across the Pacific with her homebound pennant flying from the mast. Captain Baring was having a cocktail party in his quarters.

Miss Mudge was talking to Dick Charlton. Her sparrow face was aglow, and she was drawing on a cigarette in the ridiculous, inadequate way she had. The chief officer seemed to be rather embarrassed for once in his life. The First girl, who had been drinking cocktail after cocktail with her attention fastened on him, was reeling over in their direction now. Her expression was glassy and determined. Angela saw her stop between them and catch Miss Mudge by the shoulder. Heavens! Was she going to make a scene? She was drunk enough for anything. Suddenly Joan's voice rose strident and hysterical, over the babel of tongues, arresting the attention of everyone in the room. Miss Mudge was blushing at her, not knowing what it was all about. Joan, a blazing fury of red locks and dishevelment, was bending over her and shouting things that made Angela's heart stand still.

"You think Dick loves you, you poor little thing!" she cried. "Well, you're mistaken. He loves me. He's laughing at you. Yes, I saw him kiss you on the deck at Yokohama, after you had thrown yourself into the water. I saw you faint, you silly little crow. You didn't see me in the beach chair, did you? Why did you ever leave Ontario, or wherever it is you came from? Why did you ever think you could come around the world and behave like anyone else? Don't you know you're a snitch? Take a look at yourself!"

Joan threw back her head and laughed. Dick tried to intervene, but she pushed him off and took a firmer hold of Miss Mudge, on whose face a slow realization was dawning.

"You think because Dick dances with you that he's in love with you, don't you? Well, he's laughing at you up to his ears. Everybody knows he's making fun of you, but you're too simple to know it. He knows you're forty-three and never had another man in your life."

"Stop her, stop her, some one!" Angela was murmuring through pale lips, but everyone seemed to be rooted to the spot. "He knows you say your prayers at night and help to support the mission. He knows you're a dry who's cheating, a silly little school-teacher trying to be a sport, smoking cigarettes, painting your face like a ballet, swigging at a drink—yes, and no doubt sleeping with him, too."

"Stop it, Joan! You're mad."

Dick was lowering over her in ashen fury. He caught her by the arms. She pulled herself free and staggered his face.

"Don't speak to me! I haven't finished with her yet. She wears cotton nightgowns with necks like this. (Joan gestured from shoulder to chin.) She sleeps with curlers in her hair. I've seen her, on her way to the bath. Won't wear her glasses for fear they might spoil her appearance. Binges into chairs. Falls over tables. Chatters, chatters, to everyone who will listen to her. All about Ontario and the wonderful children she teaches. 'Wonderful!' Think the world is full of glamour. Oh, I've heard her by the hour. Loses her money at Monte Carlo. Thinks Dick's Sir Galahad. He! Why is Dick good to her? Dick's good to her because everyone on the boat knows she's used up her savings and can't go ashore. Dick's sorry for her. Dick's mad with me. Little school-teachers should stay at home and keep their pennies in their cotton stockings. . . . shouldn't be a nuisance to grown-ups. Shouldn't think that a Spanish shawl will make them fit to kiss. . . . Poor little Miss Mudge."

Everyone tried not to look at Miss Mudge. At first her cheeks had burned. Now they were ghastly pale, except for the dots of rouge, high on her cheeks, that made her look like a wax model. Once she do, but Miss Mudge herself took hold of the situation. Ignoring them all, she put her arm around Joan's drooping shoulders and said in a clear, high voice: "Come on, you foolish child. Come down with me."

Hints for the Household

Conducted By Betty Barclay

ENERGIZING BEVERAGES

A recognized authority on metabolism, has made the statement that there is no other food substance that more quickly provides the muscles with food energy than the types of sugar contained in fruit juices.

Perhaps the long-distance runner sucking a lemon, the farmer munching an apple as he rests for a moment, or the business man starting breakfast with a full glass of Hawaiian pineapple juice, makes a pretty wise trio, after all.

May I suggest Hawaiian pineapple juice, alone, or combined with other juices, as an ideal energizing drink for the morning meal—not only for the business or laboring man, but for his wife and children, too? It steps the breakfast up a peg or two. Takes it away from the commonplace. It's a good idea for this year.

CHOCOLATE AND LEMON DESSERTS

Grandmother made rennet-custard dishes years ago, but she never turned out dainties like these—just the thing for the children who need a quart of milk each day—and just the thing for grown-ups, too, because they are so easy to digest!

Chocolate Marshmallow Rennet-Custard

1 package Chocolate Rennet-Custard Powder
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 pint marshmallows
1 pint milk
1 cup boiling water

Prepare rennet-custard according to directions on package. Chill in refrigerator. Cut marshmallows in pieces and melt in double boiler. Dissolve sugar in boiling water and add to marshmallows, and stir until thoroughly blended. Turn into a bowl and cool. Just before serving put topping on chocolate rennet-custard.

Lemon Rennet-Custard with Baked Apples

1 Rennet-Custard Tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
3 tablespoons sugar
1 pint milk
6 apples
1/2 teaspoon red food color

Maraschino cherries
1 teaspoon lemon flavoring
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup water

Cinnamon, if desired
Make a syrup of 1 cup sugar, 1/3 cup water, cinnamon, and red food color by boiling 5 minutes. Put the apples, which have been peeled and cored, in a pan and pour the syrup over them. Bake until tender, basting frequently. Place the apples in individual dishes, filling center of each apple with syrup. When cooled and syrup has jellied, chill in refrigerator. Dissolve Rennet Tablet in 1 tablespoon cold water. Add 3 tablespoons sugar and lemon flavoring to milk, and warm to lukewarm—not hot. Add dissolved rennet tablet, stir a few seconds and pour over apples. Let stand until firm, then chill in refrigerator. Place cherry on top of apple when ready to serve.

SNACKS FOR SUNDAY

Here are two recipes that you will want to file under "Sunday" or "Snacks"—luscious tidbits that touch the spot.

Sunday Supper Sardines

8 large sardines
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup oil
4 slices toast

Saute the sardines in frying pan until golden brown. Soften the butter and mix well with chopped oil. Spread a thin layer of prepared butter on each slice of toast. Place two sardines on each prepared slice of toast. Cover with remaining butter mixture. Serve on each. Serves 4.

Dad's Breakfast Sandwich

1 cup cooked beefsteak, ground
1 hard cooked egg
4 medium sized sweet gherkins
Catsup

Put through food chopper the beefsteak, egg, and sweet gherkins. Add sufficient catsup to moisten. Spread between slices of buttered bread. Makes filling for 8 sandwiches.

MAP SHOWS ROUTE "PRINCE" LINER TRIPS

WINNIPEG, Man.—An unusual folder depicting the thrilling Alaska country, a land replete with coast range mountains, glaciers, frozen poles, colorful water craft and the high adventure, reminiscent of the gold rush days of '98, has just been issued for distribution by the Canadian National Railways.

This folder, relating to the Pacific Coast cruises to Alaska, is a fine example of the printer's art and presents a unique display of pictorial illustrations of life aboard ship and the many intensely interesting scenes which greet the tourist en route from Vancouver to Alaska, the land of gold and romance, including romantic Skagway, which knew many a brawl in the gold rush days when bold, men held sway, with its fascinating streets and display of exquisite flowers. Beyond the town lies the historic trail of '98, through the White Pass, where men and beast were sacrificed in the lure of gold.

One of the most interesting features of the folder is a large map, showing in detail the route taken by "Prince" cruise liners from Vancouver to Skagway. It gives the tourist an idea of the beautiful, fjord-fringed coast rivaling the world-famed one of Norway, the multitude of channels through which the ships

YOU CAN'T STAY WHERE YOU ARE

YOU turn through a kodak album and smile at old-style clothes. Skirts cluttering the ankles . . . hats perched high up on hair . . . wasp waists . . . awkward sleeves—odd how taste has changed!

Yet day by day your taste changes in all you wear and do. You don't like the same books, enjoy the same movies, choose the same underwear, prefer the same soap you did a short while ago. You are so used to the better, you wonder why you liked the old. Advertisements make you know the better as soon as it's proved to be better. They tell of good things accepted as good taste in the best homes. The hosiery, glass-curtains, lighting fixtures other moderns use; why their use is preferred. Advertisements influence so many around you, sooner or later you'll feel the change. Even if you never read an advertisement, you'll use in time some of the conveniences which advertisements urge you to use today. Advertisements form a tide of taste that sweeps you forward; you can't stand still. Since you'll enjoy what they advertise anyway, why not begin enjoying now?

This Week in Washington

The boys on Capitol Hill have made up their minds to get through and go home by May 1. Whether that means anything or not remains to be seen. It is not likely, however, that the President will throw any new legislative proposals in at the last minute. He is just as anxious to have Congress go home as the boys are to get back and look after their political fences.

Congress has quite a few things to do, however, before it quits. The boys have to put through some kind of a farm aid bill, devise some new tax schemes which won't have too serious political repercussions and just before they leave, they will have to make another big relief appropriation.

One thing that they probably will not bother about is fixing up a permanent neutrality law. The rejection against the ideas of Senator Nye and his committee has convinced most of the members of both houses that any attempt to prescribe in advance just what the United States may or may not do in case of another general war would be as futile as most attempts to peer into the undisclosed future. Also it might get us into the very trouble which it would attempt to avert.

Pensions and Economy

Another thing that is apparently off the cards is old age pensions as a Townsend. This looked like a live issue in December, but the attitude now is to let it lie until after election. With the old age assistance plan in the Social Security Act it is figured that the states will have no trouble in taking care of the really needy old folks, and that is as far as this Congress or the Administration is inclined to go.

Congress and the Administration have been hearing so much criticism during the last few weeks, on the subject of free spending, that there is now a considerable degree of harmony between the Legislative and Executive branches of the Government in the matter of appropriations. One effect of the reaction against spending was the announcement the other day by the President that he is not going to use the last billion or so which had been voted for the Works Progress Administration. He will have to come back to Congress for a further relief appropriation for the period beginning July 1, and this may run to 2 billions.

Farm Aid Views

The farm aid bill as passed by the Senate combines in one measure several diverse elements. It provides for the replenishing of worn-out soil by the planting of grasses and legumes. Everybody is for that. It provides bountiful payments to farmers for doing these things.

It seems to be a settled policy which both major parties will undoubtedly endorse at their June conventions, that farming should be regarded as a preferred occupation, entitled to a large measure of Government aid. Therefore, there is no serious objection to paying farm bounties for the purpose just mentioned.

Where the fight will come will be over the provision of the bill which undertakes to continue control by the Department of Agriculture over crop production. Exception is taken to this by members of both parties on the ground that it is an attempt to evade the Supreme Court's ruling that the control of agriculture is not within the powers of the Federal Government, and also because it is regarded as an effort to curtail production, whereas the crooked and soil-replenishment features would tend to increase production.

New Farm Plan

The newest farm plan which is being given a good deal of consideration here is sponsored by the National Cooperative Council, a federation of farmers' cooperatives. The plan is to set up one or more corporations, in which the Government will participate, to manage the distribution and sale of surplus farm products both for export and the home markets. Whether this will come to a head at the present Congress is still a question. It may, however, become a part of one of both party platforms.

The repeal of the Bankhead Cotton Control Act, the Tobacco Control Act, and the Potato Control Act, at the request of the President, was expected after the Supreme Court's decision on the AAA.

It begins to look as if there would be no important new tax legislation at this session except possibly some form of a tax on processors to provide funds for the agricultural program. Strong opposition from within the Democratic ranks is shaping up to this particular form of tax. Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is the spearhead of a new movement against a general manufacturers' sales tax, which will, of course, be opposed by the members from the Western farm regions.

The Borah Tactics

In the realm of party politics, those observers who make it their business to try to figure out what Senator Borah is aiming at, seem to be convinced that his declaration in Ohio as a primary candidate for the Presidency is an effort to block the "favorite son" tactics which have so often resulted in throwing the nomination into the hands of the party bosses. If Mr. Borah can get a good-sized handful of instructed delegates, he can use them as a club over the Convention, but how he would use that club is still somewhat in doubt. His main objective, it is believed, is to prevent Mr. Hoover and his friends in the Old Guard from controlling the Republican Convention.

There is only one other Republican of whom it can be said with certainty that he will have a group of instructed delegates at Cleveland. That is Governor Landon of Kansas. He and Senator Borah are now away out in front.

EMPIRE SUMMER SCHOOL AT BRISTOL, ENGLAND

The Empire Summer Schools of the Royal Empire Society, of 17 Carlton House Terrace, London, S. W. 1, draw from overseas many visitors anxious for first-hand information from first-rate experts and an attractive programme has been arranged for the fourth School, to be held at Bristol University during the last week of July, from Friday, July 24th, to Friday, July 31st.

The speakers will include the High Commissioner for the Commonwealth of Australia in London, Mr. S. M. Bruce; Mr. J. C. Denison-Funder, Chairman of Imperial and International Communications; Sir Daniel Hall, who until recently was Chief Scientific Adviser to the Ministry of Agriculture; Sir Charles Innes, who was Governor of Burma from 1927 to 1932; Sir Stanley Jackson, who was Governor of Bengal for the same period and who is also one of the most famous of England's cricketers; Mr. C. M. MacInnes, a Canadian, who is now Reader in Imperial History at the University of Bristol, and has written several books on the British Empire; Hon. Harold Nicholson, M.P., the author of "Curzon: The Last Phase" and other works of literary biography; Sir Donald Somervell, M.P., the Solicitor-General; Mr. Henry Wickham Steed, who was for some years Editor of "The Times" and "The Review of Reviews" and is now lecturer in Central European History at the University of London; Sir Stephen Tallents, now Controller, Public Relations, British Broadcasting Corporation, but who is perhaps best remembered as the Secretary of the Empire Marketing Board throughout its existence; and Professor R. S. Troup, Professor of Forestry at the University of Oxford.

Those attending the School will be guests of the Royal Empire Society and of Bristol University. They will find that everything will be done to make them feel at home. There will be many excursions and a visit to Badminton, the seat of the Duke of Beaufort. They will be taken round Bristol and Bath and the neighborhood, places full of historic and present day interest. A steamer trip up the Estuary will be arranged for them and an entertainment at the Clifton Zoo.

Members of the School will be accommodated in three of the University Halls, which are in beautiful grounds with gardens and tennis courts. The School is open to all men and women interested in the British Empire and is not confined to Fellows of the Society.

BORN ABOUT THIRTY YEARS TOO LATE

Thirty years ago beer was 5c a glass and lunch was free; eggs were three dozen for a quarter; milk was 5c a quart; the butcher gave free liver for the cat and treated the kids to bologna; the hired girl worked 40c a week and did the washing; women did not powder, paint, smoke or play poker. Men wore boots and chewed tobacco, didn't shave, spat on the sidewalk, worked eleven hours a day and never went on strike. No one was operated on for appendicitis or bought glasses. Folks lived to a ripe old age just the same, and walked miles to enjoy Sunday dinner with friends.

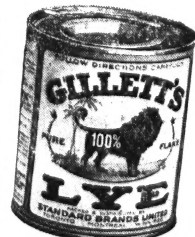

Today everybody rides in automobiles, or aeroplanes, play poker, go to movies, smoke cigarettes, drinks lemonade, plays miniature golf, spends a million dollars for a world series baseball game and blames high cost of living on the government. They never go to bed the same day they get up, and think they are having a wonderful time. This is the day of fast cars, a death rate of 32,000 from car accidents alone, profiteers, excess taxes, beer raids and prohibition. If you think life is worth living, call in and pay your stockbroker and your "Star" subscription.—Ex.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK

FISHERIES

JIM: "Bill, do you ever get tired of handling fish, fish, fish, all the time?"

BILL: "Yes, Jim, but it helps me to keep going when I think of the thousands of folks we're helping to feed!"

JIM: "That's right—fish is important and we're in a fine big business."

BILL: "Wasn't always big, though. The Chief was telling me the other day about how this company started. It seems funny, now. He and his partner figured they would do a whole lot better if they could keep their bait fresh for all-year fishing. They went to the Bank of Montreal and borrowed on their personal securities to build a cold storage plant. Of course, they soon paid back the loan, because a lot of folks saw what a good thing this business was going to be and bought stock in the company. Now look at the business!"

But the Chief admitted to me, confidentially, of course, that if it hadn't been for the Bank of Montreal, they couldn't have succeeded, as he said it was the same way with a lot of the other fishery concerns."

JIM: "A good story, Bill, and I know it's true, because the Chief told me, too. I reckon he tells most everybody, because he likes to talk about his Bank. It's my Bank, too. I have a savings account there."

BILL: "Have you, Jim? So have I."

KING EDWARD VIII SPEAKS TO EMPIRE

To the prince and people of India I send my greetings as the King-Emperor. The manifestations of your sorrow and your loyalty at this time have been a source of deep gratification to me.

The associations in peace and in war between the British and Indian peoples have been long and honorable, and the example set by Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and by King George lays on me, as their successor, a solemn trust to maintain and strengthen these associations.

Queen Mary, my family and myself have been greatly helped by the world-wide tributes of genuine sorrow which we received from every side. The vast crowds assembled reverently at the funeral, the homage to the late King's memory, and the written words of sympathy by thousands of people—not only those resident within the British empire, but in many foreign countries as well—is a thing we will never forget. It is wonderful for us to know how universally my father's great qualities have been appreciated and valued. It is no mere form of speech to say that he reigned in the hearts of his people. It was his happiness to know before he died that his long years of unstinted service were rewarded by a devotion and an affection so perfectly expressed in the jubilee demonstrations of last year.

It falls upon me to succeed him and to carry on his work. I am better known to most of you as the Prince of Wales—as a man who, during the war and since, has had the opportunity of getting to know the people of nearly every country of the world under all conditions and circumstances.

And although I now speak to you as the King, I am still the same man who has had that experience and whose constant effort it will be to promote the well-being of his fellow men.

May the future bring peace and understanding throughout the world, prosperity and happiness to British people, and may we be worthy of the heritage which is ours.

WHEN YOU HAVE OTHERS—STUDY THEM

When you are entertaining guests don't force them to listen to your favorite radio programs.

No matter how excellent, the entertainment may be tiresome to your guest, who perhaps would prefer to hear something totally different.

Few persons like loud tones. The popular and pleasing hostess will ascertain what the guest would like to hear, if anything, over the radio.

It is not enjoyable to the person who has something worth saying or who wishes to learn something equally worthwhile from the hostess, to be drowned out or compelled to listen to the radio.

Nearly every family has its favorite stations.

Too often they bring them in without consulting the guests.

Insisting upon the superiority of these programs, they will selfishly keep them going and coming.

Radios are so common that nearly every one has a list of his favorites. It is annoying to be obliged to listen to something personally irritating.
